—Greta Garbo and Clark Gable
the mad lovers who defied all convention—carried not what the world would say—the most gripping story of our times? "Susan Lenore" at the Prince Theatre,
Saturday only.

Miss Mae Vann of Ft. Pierce, sister of W. H. Vann, who has been visiting in the Vann house for the past few weeks, returned home Tuesday.

Atlanta and had been accepted for enlistment in the navy and was on his way to a station to be assigned to. He had taken an examination a few months ago and was a bit under weight. He came home and fed himself up to the required standard. He must have shown himself to be a good man,
for there are far more applicants than acceptances.

Everybody likes James Dunn
and Sally Eilers in "Bad Girl," they will love these lovers in "Over the Hills" at the Prince Theatre, Tuesday and Friday.

companied him and they returned

The powerful drama of the practical side of woman's life can make Lionel Barrymore and Elissa Landi, in "The Yellow Ticket" at the Prince Theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Everyone looks forward to see
"Over the Hill" before they take

ONE SWEET POTATO WEIGHED 32 POUNDS

Six Months From Planting To Digging; Grown In Sand
Along Lake Front

A sweet potato that weighed 32 pounds was exhibited Tuesday at the office of The News by H. G.
McGurk, who grew it at his home at Belle Glade and Pahokee
in the middle of the sand flats.
Mr. Sturgis was a foreman on the Conoco highway job in 1924.
H. E. Randall of Citrus Center,
the tender of lights on Lake Okeechobee, stopped at Daniel's Inn yesterday on his way to Miami on business.

Arthur Brisbane, the sympathetic writer who signed his name with "W. E. Brisbane" and a blue lead pencil when he signs his name.
He so signed it to a letter to Joe Friedheim, president of the Everglades Chamber of Commerce, and invited Mr. Brisbane to visit Belle Glade. The letter, written from Miami Beach and dated March 26, was the letter head of his business card. It was placed in a mail slot in the door of Mr.
Brisbane's office.

Mr. Daniel had used as seed the same sweet potato that he had brought for home use. The large size of the 32-pound specimen is attributed to the time it stayed in the ground and how long it took to grow. Several sweet potatoes were sweet potatoes at some time of planting.

SCOUT HIKE REPORT

Junior Assistant Scoutmaster
Cates accompanied by Scouts Wm.
Watkins and Cates, started out from the Everglades park ranger station and arrived at Point 57 Canal Point, Saturday at 4 o'clock. Friday, March 25, and arrived at old Port Mayaca, between 4:30 and 5 o'clock. Committee members, Mr. and Mrs. Aspinwall, and Scoutmaster Cates were with them.

Nobody has misinterpreted the sign and persons who are making social calls or transacting business come right in. Among the callers were the wife and son of Watkins and Cates, both considered as the best boy scouts in the Everglades. Wm. Watkins, a Scoutmaster, Cates was a Scoutmaster, representing the Packer, called Wednesday.

He is still growing and we trust
it is still growing, but the success of the future depends upon the efforts we put forth day by day.

While we are still steadily doing our duty, while our labors have been hard and difficult at times, and we have enjoyed the work, and have had many experiences, and many of them we have learned to love, shall always find a warm spot in our hearts, thus making the welfare of this community dear to us.

We will reorganize our Sunday school Sunday morning and all are urgently requested to present
Sunday school girls and boys to the church for the benefit of the children of Israel.

Up early Saturday morning,
breakfast went in swimming,
after which we packed our bags
and went back home. We arrived home around 11 o'clock.

W. C. NEAVES
RICHARD WATKINS.

The Editor's Own Column

I never chanced to see an old lady going over the contents of an old trunk in an attic, with contents of possession prized from her childhood and youth, but I can imagine her thoughts and her actions as treasures were brought to view. And when I say treasures I mean treasures—I hate those people who think of treasure as no more than silver or gold or radiant gems; the finest treasures are things you couldn't borrow a cent at a pawnshop. The most colorful in "the three treasures—love and light, and calm thoughts, regular as infant's breath"; but there are others, and memory is one of them, memories of days, or of a particular day. If you want to know, it was Alexander Pope who rendered from Horace:

"Life is not to be bought with a chain of gold;
Not all Apollo's Pythian treasures hold,
Or Troy once held, peace and quiet away;
Can bribe the poor possession of a day."

(Dogone that cat! There's an old tom cat, an alley cat, with faded brindle hair, and crippled, that gets up and jumps up on my desk and destroys the continuity of thought and gets all my mussed up. He must be hungry he comes around and sits real quiet, and when he gets fed up I'm going to write him up some day.)

I can visualize the old lady as she lifts and displays her wedding gown or other garment with which is associated the name of some happy young girl, or handkerchief or a love letter, or the garments of a child long dead; I can more easily visualize the action—I can know something of the thoughts and emotions that go with such moments, moments of mystic insight when the past and the future unroll like a scroll and the mystery of the What and Why are plain to see. These treasures are love and light and calm thoughts; then it is memory that calls them up to view, the memory that menaces excite.

I say I can know something of all that; for I started the other day to sort out some of these thoughts accumulated in the last six years. There weren't any articles of his-troussous in it: the dress suits, regalia of the Shrine went to the mottos years ago; all the other things were marked "Paid." There was a lot of rubbish there, but there were things that gave me pain, sentimentally and collectively.

In September of 1926 I had preserved every scrap of datum bearing on the hurricane and flood of that year, and added to it the order of the sun of 1926. I hope that this preservation might serve a local historian in years to come. But I juked all of it, for it is noted that survivors tend to discredit, forget it. You would know I was lying if you knew I had not kept newspaper clippings and copies of election notices and the like that bore on my political interests. I had saved them, but last week I juked them, too. Never, like Joe Earman, did I have a "hell-and-damned" life, and I am afraid that we're men's duplicitous and broken promises: they went into the bonfire, too, and I like to feel that I burned up resentment and bitterness.

How much in life is important? What is important? You may not consciously theorize on these questions, but when a clean sheet of paper is a filling cabinet you have the practical question put in concrete form. A business man may say his customers, his bank, record sales, are about the most important things in life; but a few nights ago when "Heck" Larimore was helping me make out bills, we tore out of the ledger all the records of the amount of cash that amounted "Heck," said to more than a thousand dollars. The poor cusses had had hard luck, and their bad luck was just as well to declare a permanent moratorium, like Hoover did for his European friends who owe the U. S. A. "Thinking about the time when you never had a customer was the most Christian act of my life—if Christianity is measured by the formula, "Do as you would be done by."

communities are more than linked together—they are bound together. The communities are connected by these ties, but unhappy the people have not been brought into such a community of interest as could be expected and such as was hoped for; there is a bit more of small-town rivalry than is helpful.

There is no more fruitful source of disagreement than the routing of public roads. This is because we have not got good public roads enough to go around, and the ones thereon which they are laid out and are paid for and what benefit have from their use and how little the idea presents itself to the public to route to serve special interests and increase the value of real estate or increase retail sales. Worse than that, is the idea that the road must be run to hurt another's property and benefit others persons of benefits. It will be helpful to remember that street paving is paid for by the owners of the adjacent property, not by the residents of a road out of public funds, the real estate owner who lives in a city or incorporated town pays for the street paving to the same road out into the country. Extensions of water mains and electric light lines are made as a charge against the cost of service, and local service is to be rendered by a state road, the beneficiary of that special service could be expected to pay for it. However, there is no provision in law for the same. Road engineers must lay the road out on a route that will not be the benefitted property but by property of all classifications all over the state.

There was a splendid exhibition of unity for progress when all of Broward county came together on behalf of state road No. 26, and a proper spirit of give and take when he made history he came around and set real standards, and when he gets fed up I'm going to write him up some day.)

BRYAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATE

Widely Known In Palm Beach County As Builder of First Glades Road

Tom M. Bryan of Fort Lauderdale, who this week announces as a candidate in the Democratic primary of June 7 for senator for the 35th senatorial district, which covers Palm Beach and Broward counties, has long been identified with the growth and development of the lower east coast of Florida and has served in the legislature.

A native Floridian, graduating from Emory University, Mr. Bryan immediately embarked upon engineering career, building the first electric light plant in Fort Lauderdale, in connection with which he operated the first ice manufacturing plant in that city, and he has served in the legislature.

TOO HIGH SALARIES TO OFFICE HOLDERS

balancing the national budget is being approached by proposals to increase the tax burden with little or no thought being given to the possibility and necessity for the reduction of expenditures.

"Today it is estimated that over 20 per cent of the national income is required to meet these expenses of government, and that means 20 per cent of the wages and salaries of the people of America, usually through increased rents and increased rates of taxable commodities, ultimately carries the cost of government.

"This is further emphasized by the fact that today one out of every four persons are unemployed reported on by the government payroll, and when it is considered that only forty per cent of all the people of the country are gainfully employed, that would mean that each man who is working gainfully employed today contributes either directly or indirectly, a substantial portion of his net earnings to some government employee.

Mr. Gill further said "From the rapid increase in the number of governmental employees in proportion to the increase in population, particularly during the past few years, Merlin Thorpe, editor of 'Nation's Business,' has computed the fact that if the rate of increase continues, within ten years of the present time, the wages of the people of America supported from governmental payrolls by 1932 will be 45 per cent greater than the cost of the absolute necessities for life and which they may spend and invest in the purchase of land, homes, furnishings and other things essential for the happiness, wealth, health, commerce and industry of a free people."

"It is further emphasized that the public would be thrown into the commerce and industry of the nation.

"'Business Week,' a weekly news magazine, estimates that from 1929 to 1932 the wages and salaries of the people of America decreased 45 per cent; that business income, including individual and partnership incomes, enterprises, rentals, royalties, and gains from the sale of assets decreased 48% per cent; but that wages of federal, state and local governments increased 20 per cent."

their part, for the expenses of various over-lapping governmental districts, agencies, bureaus, etc., etc., deprives the people today of money that would otherwise be expended for automobiles, clothing and comforts of every kind, luxuries and necessities alike, diverting this money into the unproductive channels of governmental expenditures when, if available to the public, would be thrown into the commerce and industry of the nation.

"The situation has now reached

al payroll expense.

"Although the present depression, far reaching in its effects, has not curtailed the income of the American people, there has on the contrary, been a constant drain of its resources to the extent that is required today for the support of governmental activities. Mr. Gill said, "A public which either directly, or as most often the case, indirectly pays the nation's tax bill, should, and I am sure, do its duty when it demands knowledge of the governmental representatives who are elected to supervise, conduct and maintain our various forms of government."

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF PALM BEACH COUNTY

I am a candidate for the office of Tax Collector of Palm Beach County at the Democratic Primary of June 7, 1932. We have been instrumental in West Palm Beach since the year 1910 and for the past thirty years have closely identified with the growth and development of Palm Beach County.

During the years 1927 to 1930 inclusive I served as Tax Assessor of Dade County, from which Palm Beach County was taken. I was a member of the Committee whose efforts were responsible for the creation of Palm Beach County, after a long and hard fight for independence from Dade County.

I am thoroughly acquainted with the duties of the Tax Collector, and capable of giving efficient, economical administration. I believe that the same policies of economy and efficiency should be applied to the public in private business and if elected I faithfully promise to practice such policies.

I am satisfied that the application of these policies will bring a saving to the public of many thousands of dollars annually, and the public never was in greater need of saving.

I solicit, and will appreciate your vote and support.

VERY IMPORTANT!

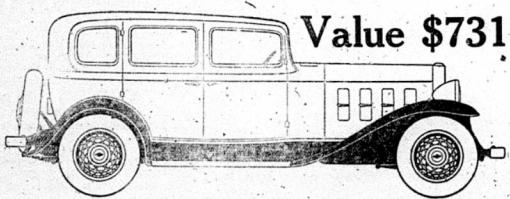

The attention of every candidate is again called to the fact that after "Boosters' Day", Saturday, April 9, every Club of $2000 or more will have 50,000 votes as they are right now. It is important to say that you are helping DOUBLE CLUB vote up to and including BOOSTERS' DAY. As stated in the original announcements, Clubs are now drawing 150,000 votes, but after BOOSTERS' DAY, Saturday, April 9, they will draw but 50,000 votes for the remainder of the race. Secure every Club you can by the closing hour, Saturday night;

don't stop at one Club, get two or three you can do it if you try. The campaign office will remain open until 10 p.m., Saturday night since BOOSTERS' DAY and the Big Double Club vote will be brought to a close at this hour. Remember after 10 o'clock Saturday night, each Club will earn but 50,000 votes. Start working NOW and KEEP working and be in the campaign office not later than 10 o'clock Saturday night.

THE MODERN GALS

Edna, Estel Pickren

They sit in school, and paint their faces.

They powder their nose in public places.

They paint their lips scarlet red,

And roam the streets when they should be in bed.

They shave their nails, and "frizz" their hair.

They "prune" their eyebrows with utmost care.

When they know you have money, they like you then, and call you "Money."

They like you then, and call you "Money."

But soon as they get you broke, they turn up their nose, and call you "Money."

That's the way with the modern girls.

So I let's say alone, me and my pals.

CAN YOU IMAGINE

Gethie Smith.

Dorsey Pugh is a hurry.

Thelma Buck without Clinton.

Hazel and Imogene not talking over their new phones.

Marion Gates and Joe Helms dancing together.

The Seniors without their dignities.

"Pete" Thompson on time at noon.

George Crawford and Marion Gates blushing over candy for Mr. Hobson's benefit.

The Seniors all coming to school.

Walter Bragg with long golden curls.

Some of the Seniors not meeting.

Miss Young in the lab. at 3:45.

Malvin Herring walking home.

after his report card for Mrs. Colson.

Edith Willis swinging a grass cutter or mowing the campus.

Genevieve Brown not talking about Georgia.

Did you know that—

Marjorie Cochran has an ambition to become a stenographer.

Some rumors have it that the Seniors feel that she has started her career by becoming interested in the bank. We wish her lots of success, and feel sure that "Mr. Klondike" will do everything he can to help her.

Lewis Friend had his tonnals taken off over the week end and Gethie was on the few that knew about it.

Imogene Sanders has progressed very rapidly in her aspiration of becoming a school teacher. She gets lots of work at the school, and she is a good student. She is afraid of everybody, so she gives the wrong ideas over the telephone, so she uses a password. When the Palm service station people came to see us, we could not get them to use the word. You won't feel these smart school teachers.

We have heard a much about cooperation lately, and we have seen some good examples of it from our own class. We are forced to give an account of two of our boys.

Joe Helms and Dorsey Pugh are cooperating.
